尹朝辉 Yin Zhaohui

Yin Zhaohui, Chinese contemporary artist born in 1977 into an artistic family in Anyang, Henan Province. He graduated from the Central Academy of Fine Arts in 2004. In the early stages of his career, Yin focused on the theme of the human body, using fragments such as hands, fingers, and faces to probe the hidden dimensions of human psychology. Around 2014, his artistic focus shifted from the body to the natural landscape. His visual language moved from close observation to distant contemplation, drawing together the spirit of traditional Chinese literati painting and a contemporary sensibility. Through this transition, he sought to create subjective landscapes imbued with the atmospheric resonance characteristic of Song and Yuan painting.

Occupying a space between abstraction and representation, Yin's landscapes often take wind, waves, clouds, trees, mountains, and rocks as their major subjects. Delicate yet timeless lines and a restrained, understated palette lend his works a sense of distance and stillness, evoking a quiet and contemplative realm.

尹朝辉，中国当代艺术家，1977年出生于河南安阳艺术世家，2004年毕业于中央美术学院。尹朝辉的创作早期专注于“身体”主题，通过手指、面孔等局部探视人的隐秘心理。约2014年后，创作重心从“身体”转向自然风景，画面语言从“近焦”转向“远眺”，融合传统文人画精神与当代视角，追求主观性风景和宋元气韵。其风景作品介乎抽象与具象之间，常以风、波、云、树、山石等自然之物为主角，线条纤柔高古，色彩古雅幽微，营造出疏离、静默的意境。

The complexity of contemporary art often arises from the continual interaction between different systems. Within such a dynamic context, painting can no longer be understood as a mode of expression that develops along a single, fixed trajectory. Changes in environment, space, technique, modes of viewing, and points of comparison all generate new possibilities for visual experiences once taken for granted. The Yin brothers—Yin Zhaohui and Yin Zhaoyu—both begin from lived, figurative experience, yet their practices diverge along distinct paths. The former gradually translates elusive inner sensations into spiritual terrains composed of mountains, water, trees, and veils; the latter dismantles the everyday interior, transforming it into an intimate theatre constructed from objects, layers of colour, brushwork, and traces of time. Beyond the narrative of comparison often imposed on their identity as twins, their artistic journeys more meaningfully reveal the dynamic forces at work in contemporary painting today.

In his earlier works, Yin Zhaohui employed enlarged or distorted fragments of the body, fingers, and close-up perspectives to convey the taut, sensitive, and restrained emotions associated with youth. His recent shift in practice does not abandon the body as a central subject; rather, it allows the body to assume new forms within the landscape. The contours of mountains echo the curves once used to depict the human figure, trees continue his observations of living structures, while waterfalls and ponds transform emotion into movement, impact, and stillness. Rather than returning to conventional literati landscape formulas, Yin constructs a contemporary pictorial language imbued with a subtle classical sensibility without resorting to imitation. Within this framework, he situates the spiritual turbulence of modern life within a broader continuum of time and space.

Meanwhile, Yin Zhaoyu has gradually turned away from the detached gaze that once surveyed the world from a distance and redirected his attention inward. Room has become the primary site of his artistic inquiry, yet his interiors are anything but stable. They resemble spaces continually dismantled, reconstructed, and rewritten. Human figures recede, narrative dissolves, and objects such as flowerpots, tablecloths, mirrors, curtains, mannequins, and plants take center stage. These elements do not tell stories in a conventional sense; instead, they exert influence upon one another, generating a quiet dialogue that transforms the canvas into a space where reason and emotion are constantly negotiated. In recent years, his compositions have become increasingly flattened. Layers of colour appear weathered by time, while brushwork seeks new rhythms between geometric order and the sensibility of collage.

Whether viewed through their visual effect or deeper psychological dimensions, Yin Zhaohui's sharp precision and Yin Zhaoyu's imaginative lyricism stand both in contrast and in parallel. One looks outward, drawing from the landscape; the other turns inward, gathering meaning from the objects that surround him. Despite their divergent paths, both regard painting as a gradual accumulation of perception, memory, and lived spiritual experience. When their works are placed within the same space, the fluidity of painterly language naturally unsettles established modes of viewing, allowing the act of looking itself to enter a new dimension.

"A Passage Through Mountain Void: Yin Zhaohui Solo Exhibition" and "Dual Presence: Yin Zhaoyu Solo Exhibition" function as two independent yet profoundly interconnected realms. Together, they present more than sixty recent works by the artists, including oil on canvas, acrylic on canvas, ink on silk, and collages. Moving between colour and composition, the exhibitions begin with a dynamic visual experience and invite viewers to consider the resilience with which the artists continue to pursue their personal visions amid the flourishing and increasingly diverse landscape of contemporary Chinese art.

当代艺术的复杂性往往来源于各种系统之间持续发生的互动。在这种动态背景下，绘画很难再被理解为一种沿着某固定脉络发展的表达方式。环境、空间、技法、观看方式以及对照关系的变化都会使曾被视为理所当然的视觉经验产生新的可能性。尹氏兄弟二人——尹朝辉、尹朝宇——都从具象经验出发，却分别走向两条不同的道路：前者把身体里难以言明的感受，慢慢转译为山、水、树与帘幕构成的精神场域；后者则把日常室内拆解成一个由物、色层、笔触和时间痕迹组成的内在剧场。比起兄弟对照的叙事路径，他们的创作经验更多的是共同展现了当代绘画中动态的因素构成。

尹朝辉早期曾以放大或扭曲的身体局部、手指与近距离视角，呈现青春期般紧绷、敏感而克制的生命感受。近年的创作转向并非脱离身体这一母题，而是让身体在风景中改头换面。山势对应曾经刻画躯体的弧线，树木延续生命结构的观察，瀑布与水团则把情绪化为流动、冲击与停驻。他并没有简单回到传统山水的图式，而是在一种略带古意、又并不仿古的当代文人画语境里，把当代人的精神震荡安放进更深远的时空之中。

尹朝宇逐渐抛开了习惯远眺世界的冷静，转而向“内部”发展。房间成为了他艺术表达最主要的场域，但他的房间并不意味着安稳，反而像一处不断推倒、重建、再被改写的现场。人物被削弱，叙事被抽离，花盆、桌布、镜子、帘幕、模型人与植物接过了主角位置。它们并不讲故事，却彼此牵制、彼此发声，使画面成为理性与情感反复协商的地方。近年来，画面更趋平面，色层像被时间氧化，笔触则在几何秩序与拼贴感之间寻找新的呼吸。
